A WORD FROM THE PUBLISHER

As Mark Twain is said to have observed, "History may not repeat itself, but it sure does rhyme." Current events seem to be no exception. Parallels between war pairs—Gulf Wars, I and II, and World Wars, I and II—are hard to ignore.

Chamberlain and Hitler

Just when we thought fascism was a thing of the past, we discover it again in Iraq where the resemblance between the Nazi and Baath parties is uncanny—to say nothing of Hitler and Hussein. And, it seems, the persistence of Iraq in developing weapons of mass destruction (at least the chemical and biological ones) in defiance of U.N. sanctions has eerie echoes of German rearmament during the interval between world wars, something also forbidden by the world. How strange that Germany now plays the pacifist. Even the naive belief held by many, two thirds of a century ago, that German intentions were no threat has reappeared in similar wishful thinking for Iraq. Some would argue that even Neville Chamberlain has made a second coming, though this time as a Frenchman.

Whatever the outcome of developments in the Middle East and around the world, it seems clear that our civilization is in the middle of another great initiation, or change. While the full meaning of such episodes is not always apparent at the outset, hindsight will doubtless fill in the blanks.

The British historian Arnold Toynbee saw history, in terms of the rise and fall of civilizations, following distinct and recurring patterns. If Toynbee was right, a civilization's survival is owed less to its failure to deal with physical or environmental threats than to an inability to respond to moral and spiritual challenges.

Previously in this space I have quoted one of my favorite teachers who once remarked, "all change comes through dramatic episode." The corollary of that, I guess, would be that NO change comes WITHOUT dramatic episode. So for all of those who have been praying for change, it's worth remembering the advice to be careful what you pray for, you may get it, drama and all. Nevertheless, we believe that whatever the outcome of the current struggle, if we find the necessary courage and rise to the occasion, we have nothing to fear.

By the time you read this, much will have transpired on the world stage that hadn't, at the time these words were written, so you will be able to judge their import in the light of events known to you but not to me. I will be quite surprised, however, if Iraq and the Middle East are not center stage. In this issue you will read from William Henry (author of "One Foot in Atlantis") about a previously unsuspected link between ancient Iraq and Ireland, and with Moira Timms (author of "Beyond Prophecies and Predictions") you will explore the ancient Babylonian prophecy and learn why we are between Iraq and a hard place.

I could say more, but our prophecy is that you will shortly see for yourself.
