

Since its publication more than a decade ago, this highly influential book has won international acclaim and pioneered a revolution in psychology and social sciences. Now, with more than half a million copies of the book in print, Carol Gilligan reflects on the impact and implications of her findings in a new preface to her classic study of women's voices and human development.

"The book that completed the human circle by bringing women's lives into it."

—Gloria Steinem

"It has the charge of a revelation...[Gilligan] flips old prejudices against women on their ears. She reframes qualities regarded as women's weaknesses and shows them to be human strengths. It is impossible to consider [her] ideas without having your estimation of women rise."

—Amy Gross, Vogue

"Theories of moral development are not mere abstractions. They matter—to the way children are raised, to female and male self-esteem, as ammunition for personal and political attack—and that is why Carol Gilligan's book is important...In a Different Voice is consistently provocative and imaginative."

—Carol Tavis, New York Times Book Review

"Gilligan's book is feminism at its best...Her thesis is rooted not only in research but in common sense...Theories of human development are never more limited or limiting than when their bias is invisible, and Gilligan's book performs the vital service of illuminating one of the deepest biases of all."

—Alfie Kohn, Boston Globe

"A profound and profoundly important book. It poses a challenge to psychology...But it may be just what we need to revitalize our field and bring it into a more meaningful alignment with reality."

—Elizabeth Douvan, Contemporary Psychology

"To those of us searching for a better understanding of the way men and women think and the different values we bring to public problems and to our private lives, [this book] is of enormous importance."

—Judy Mann, Washington Post

Carol Gilligan is Professor in the Human Development and Psychology Program at the Graduate School of Education, Harvard University. She is the coauthor of Meeting at the Crossroads: Women's Psychology and Girls' Development (Harvard) and was Ms. magazine's 1984 Woman of the Year.
