

Contents

| | |
|--|-----|
| Introduction: The Alchemy of Capital and Nature | ix |
| Why the Late Nineteenth-Century Countryside? xii | |
| The Discourse of Rural Realism xiii | |
| Why Rural Realism, Why the Novel? xv | |
| Stalking the Interdisciplinary Wilds xvii | |
| Reference Maps | xxi |
| PART I Making Geographies | |
| 1 Rural Commodity Regimes: A Primer | 3 |
| The Logics and Illogics of Production: The Shift to and out of Grain 4 | |
| The Regime of Specialty Crops 7 | |
| A Wider Division of Labor: The Country in the City 18 | |
| 2 Nature and Fictitious Capital: The Circulation of Money Capital | 28 |
| Capitalism and Nature: The Agrarian Nexus 28 | |
| Axis One: The Mann-Dickinson Thesis, Nature as Obstacle 30 | |
| Axis Two: Exploiting the Natural Obstacle 32 | |
| Keeping Capitalism Out or Letting Capital In? | |
| Marx on Circulation 34 | |
| Blurred Boundaries and Fugitive Bodies 38 | |
| Nature and Circulation 42 | |
| Capital, Nature, and the Space-Time of Agro-Credits in the United States 44 | |
| Capital, Nature, and the Space-Time of Agro-Credits in California 52 | |
| Conclusion: Reading the Landscape of Fictitious Capital 77 | |

vi CONTENTS

- 3 Toward Rural Realism: Variable Capital, Variable Capitalists, and the Fictions of Capital 81
- The Way to Get Farm Labor? 81
 - The Ever-New, Ever-Same, 1: Continuity of Wage Labor and Changes in the Wage Labor Market 83
 - The Ever-New, Ever Same, 2: Resistance and Reaction 87
 - Racializing the Working Body and Multicultural Racism 90
 - Toward Rural Realism: An Agrarianism without Illusions? 96
 - Variable Capitalists All: Capitalist Laborers and the Fictions of Capital in Country and City 104
 - Coda: The Labor of Fiction 112

PART II Excavating Geographical Imaginations

- Introduction 115
- Many Countrysides 115
 - The Trials of Capital and Narratives of Social Space 118
 - The Narrative of Social Space in Rural Realism 121
- 4 Mussel Slough and the Contradictions of Squatter Capitalism 123
- The Commodification of Mussel Slough: Railroad, Speculators, and Squatters Converge in the Tulare Basin 125
 - Blood-Money* and the Anatomy of Development 130
 - The Country and the City: From Transgression to Similitude 137
 - The Octopus* and the Bourgeois Sublime 139
 - Bourgeois Discourse and the Uses of Nature 148
- 5 Realty Redux: Landscapes of Boom and Bust in Southern California 150
- Where Is Southern California? 150
 - From Ranchos to Real Estate 152
 - The Boom of the 1880s 154
 - The Southern California Boom Novel 160
 - Conclusion: Production, a Necessary Evil 173
- 6 Romancing the Sand: Earth-Capital and Desire in the Imperial Valley 175
- The Problem 175
 - Engineers and Entrepreneurs 176
 - Producing the Imperial Valley 178
 - What a Difference a Flood Makes 179
 - Imperial Valley Representations, 1: Promotion and Its (Dis)Contents 181
 - Imperial Valley Representations, 2: The Winning of Barbara Worth and the Erotics of Western Conquest 182
 - Conclusion: Engineering Rural Realism 193

| | | |
|---|--|-----|
| 7 | Take Me to the River: Water, Metropolitan Growth, and the Countryside | 196 |
| | Designer Ducts | 196 |
| | Los Angeles and the Owens Valley | 198 |
| | San Francisco and Hetch Hetchy Valley | 200 |
| | Rural Eclipse: The Water-Bearer and The Ford | 204 |
| | Wither Rural Realism? | 213 |
| | Conclusion | 215 |
| | Notes | 219 |
| | References | 235 |
| | Index | 251 |