

The drawing below will illustrate the concept (but obviously not the coding) of Global Title queries. With the concepts firmly implanted we'll move on to the actual coding.

As an alias addressing mechanism, Global Title can obviate the need for ubiquitous ponderous routing tables. (Actually I just said that to see if you were still awake). It can also hide network assets and provide greater control for conditional rerouting requirements.